

CHARGED WITH DEATHS

Engine Operator Forgot to Deliver Train Orders.
Columbia, S. C., Oct. 16.—The engine operator forgot to deliver a train order and three men are dead and another will die. A fast freight and a passenger engine came together near Grovesboro Sunday morning on the Southern railway in a head-on collision.
The dead: D. M. Dixon, white, engineer on engine; James T. McPherson, Jr., white, fireman on engine; Henry Pile, white, engineer on engine.
The injured: James G. Price, white, engineer on freight; Charles Weir, white, brakeman on freight; Henry Gates, colored, fireman on freight, will die.
Through freight No. 74, northbound, left Columbia on time Sunday morning and orders were given by the dispatcher here showing that engine No. 1626, southbound, had the right of way of the track to Grovesboro. The order was never delivered to the crew of the freight train.

Want Peabody Arrested.

New York, Oct. 16.—The Tribune says that word reached this city Sunday night that certain Kentuckians were urging that a warrant be sworn out for President Peabody's arrest on a charge of "coercion of agents," when the Mutual Life's president visited Frankfort. Coercion is a criminal offense in the Blue Grass state, and many of the Kentuckians are thoroughly aroused, especially over Colonel Biscoe Hindman's dismissal. It is explained that Mr. Peabody will appear before Commissioner Pruitt, in the Frankfort state house. It is believed several of the managers who have resigned recently or have been dismissed, including Colonel Hindman, F. O. Page of Detroit, Herbert K. Fell of this city and E. O. Sutton of Massachusetts, will attend Monday's hearing.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

Peter Fry, Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if I had any business to attend to, I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month, as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it, and after taking three bottles I began to get better, and continued to improve until I was entirely well." J. W. McCollum & Co.

Blankenship Goes to Jail.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 16.—W. M. Blankenship, the white man who was detained by the police on a serious charge preferred by a citizen of Sofley, was removed from the city hospital to the county jail, and will await a trial. He had been ill and was being treated. He declares that he knows nothing of the charge which has been preferred. He was placed under guard at the hospital, having on a prior occasion escaped through a second story window.

Shooting at Negro Dance.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 16.—Frank Lester, a negro, is at the city hospital dangerously wounded in the abdomen as the result of a shooting affray at a negro dance at Grovania. A negro, who, it is stated, has since been arrested, opened fire into a crowd and before he had stopped, Lester was probably fatally wounded in the leg. Lester was sent to the hospital, and the prisoner was taken to Houston county jail.

Vessel Floated Through Oil.

Port Arthur, Tex., Oct. 16.—The steamer Captain A. T. Lucas has returned to Port Arthur after a search of the gulf for two Standard Oil barges, which went adrift during the recent hurricane. Neither was found, but the Lucas passed through a lot of floating oil for a distance of 135 miles at about the point where it had been expected to find the barges.

Napoleon Bonaparte

Showed at the battle of Austerlitz he was the greatest leader in the world. Ballard's Snow Liniment has shown the public it is the best liniment in the world. The Spanish Main.

"What do you understand by the Spanish main?" Such was the problem propounded at the club lunch table, and many and varied were the answers. In the "Wreck of the Hesperus" it was remembered that there spoke up "an old sailor who had sailed the Spanish main," and it was recalled that in the "Ingolsby Legends" one says, "My father dear he is not here; he seeks the Spanish main." There was, however, a certain vagueness about the speakers' views as to what particular thing was meant by the word, some thinking one thing and some thinking another, and only one speaking with the authority of "an old sailor who had sailed the Spanish main." Such a discussion tends to show how satisfied most of us are to half know a thing or to think that we know without troubling about verification.—London Chronicle.

Don't Be Imposed Upon.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs and colds. J. W. McCollum & Co.

The Shopping Set.

The Englishwoman never knows when she enters a shop what she wants. She is swayed by impulse, grabs wildly at everything she likes or thinks she likes and probably comes back and grumbles the next day. She is also completely lost if the shop-walkers do not dog her every footstep to implore her to "look at this charming toque" or "condemned to 'glance at this special line in cheap skirts.'" But the American woman resents any suggestion that she does not know what she wants, likes to be left severely alone and if interfered with may abruptly leave the shop. But, while she is less irritating than the Englishwoman, she is far more exacting.—London Express.

A Young Mother at 70.

"My mother has suddenly been made young at 70. Twenty years of intense suffering from dyspepsia had entirely disabled her, until six months ago, when she began taking Electric Bitters which have completely cured her and restored the strength and activity she had in the prime of life," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick of Danforth, Me. Greatest restorative medicine on the globe. Sets stomach, liver and kidneys right, purifies the blood, and cures malaria, biliousness and weakness. Wonderful nerve tonic. Price 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists.

A HOPELESS SITUATION.

Odd Climax That Was Not a Part of the Play.

Frank Gilmore, the actor, tells the following story about his aunt, Miss Sarah Thorne, who was leading woman at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, many years ago.

"Miss Thorne was given a part in 'The Masked Prince,' the second piece of the evening," said Mr. Gilmore. "Glancing through her part hastily at breakfast, she noticed that there was one scene in which she had so little to say that it could be learned just before going on. She decided to skip that scene and get to the longer passages.

"When night came, and my aunt made her appearance, she did very well in the first scene. In the second scene occurred the passages she had skipped in the morning. She rushed to the corner in which she left her book, but it was not there. Finally, the stage manager, receiving no response to his repeated calls, sought her out and pushed her on the stage. There she was, before a large audience, without the slightest idea of what she was supposed to do or say. The scene was a courtroom. At a high desk sat the presiding judge, letter perfect in his part, because he had it ready to read from the papers in front of him. A trial was taking place, and Miss Thorne, to her horror, discovered that she was to be the principal witness, on whose answers hung the entire plot of the play. The judge adjusted his spectacles, looked at his part, and said in solemn tones, 'The witness will now state what she saw the prisoner do on this particular night.'

"What was she to answer? She glanced around helplessly. She hadn't the faintest idea what she had seen the prisoner do on that particular night. The critical moment had arrived; some one must speak, but she couldn't. Her eye alighted on one of the characters in the play who looked particularly reliable. He looked like a person who could get one out of any sort of difficulty. So, pointing at him, she exclaimed in impressive tones, 'Ask that man!'

"The entire cast seemed disconcerted by this remark. They did not know precisely what ought to be said, but instinct told them something was wrong. The judge, thinking he might have made some mistake, turned over a couple of pages of manuscript and, having convinced himself on this point, again addressed the witness. My aunt glanced at the uncomfortable gentleman and, no other idea coming to her, again exclaimed, 'Ask that man!' This concentration of public attention was too much for him, and he sneaked off the stage with a feeble 'Excuse me.' Of course the situation was a hopeless one, and the curtain had to be rung down."—Success.

Hebrew Poetry In Earnest.

Hebrew poetry has power over our feelings because it is always in dead earnest. There is no play acting here. When one sees or reads "Hamlet" or "Macbeth" or "King Lear" one is absorbed in the distress and suffering, but behind the absorption is the sense of detachment from real affairs. Unconsciously we feel that we can afford to take part by imagination in the suffering because, after all, it is not real. To understand and appreciate the poetry of the Old Testament one must remember that it is always real. The sufferings or the joy or the faith is the experience of real men uttering forth the depths of their soul. The poetry had always the direct and practical purpose of unburdening real feeling. There is no make believe here. Even in Job the apparent form of a drama is the fulcrum of masks for the deep and real feelings which lie underneath. The book is not an effort of the author to imagine how such a man as Job, suffering such trials, would have felt, but rather the expression of actual distress over the hopeless plight of his people. The mental tortures under which Job writhes are therefore those of real people in real and harrowing perplexity and the overwhelming power of the answer of the Almighty, the direct witness of a faith which could not be daunted by the most grievous trials.—J. H. Gardiner in Atlantic.
